Continuing Professional Development sessions for schools

The Institute for Education (IfE) has compiled a list of experts from different areas who have been selected to support schools and deliver accredited/non-accredited professional development sessions during and/or after school hours.

The selected experts are all experienced with years of adult/teacher training. As well as being experienced in their various fields of expertise, they are also knowledgeable in the field of educational policy and practice.

When in the process of organizing school management driven Continuing Professional Development sessions, Senior Management Teams are encouraged to go through our extensive list of sessions and select those most appropriate to meet their requirements as outlined through the school development plan. Applications will be received via the online form and submitted to the Institute.

The Institute will in turn select the appropriate expert who will be asked to make contact with the school and discuss session content.
